CDI trainer certification advantage

The 3M clinical documentation integrity (CDI) professional trainer certification prepares CDI professionals for the 3M™ 360 Encompass™ System for CDI final training demonstration and certification exam. After passing the exam, candidates will earn the CDI trainer certification and badge so they can train others in their organization.

How the program works

The certified trainer course is a blended learning format. It combines aspects of online courses, facilitator led online classroom group discussions and training demonstrations—combined with materials designed to support learning objectives. The final exam is 50 questions and requires an 80 percent pass rate to be certified. Certification lasts for two years and will require recertification after that timeframe.

How can your organization benefit from having a certified trainer?

Having a certified trainer brings in-house expertise with 3M products, enabling consistent application of skills and tools, and cross-departmental coordination between coding, CDI and quality. Your team will have access to learning opportunities and tools to promote best practices and use cases for the products and services licensed by your health system.

Some of the other benefits include:

- Enhanced response times to support tickets. Certified trainers will know how to better triage help tickets for both internal and the 3M team.
- Early access to new features and roll outs. This includes assets like templates, tools and lesson plans to better prepare your teams for the changes.
- Access to a full support environment. You will have all the assets needed to train your team and to ensure they are using best practices.
